The 2010 IACLEA golf tournament will be held at the Norman K. Probstain Golf course in Saint Louis, Missouri. Golf has been played in Forest Park since 1912. The original courses were designed by a Scotsman, Robert Foulis, who started out as an assistant to Tom Morris at the old course at St. Andrews. The original "flat nine" opened in 1912 with the second nine opening the following year in 1913. The final nine "on the hill" was completed in 1915. Over the years the park has played host to many events, including the 1929 National Public Links Championship.

From 2001 - 2004, The Courses at Forest Park underwent a complete re-design. Their principal architect, Stan Gentry, took the task of re-working Robert Foulis' work with a keen eye on incorporating the look and feel of the original course. The revival-style architecture of the bunkers, the shape & contours of the greens, and the roll-off and chipping areas of the course can now be seen in this reconfigured 27-hole picturesque golf course designed to provide flexibility and variety to golfers of all levels.

Please, come and join your colleagues for a round of golf at this historic and wonderful course!
